The Ronald W. Reagan Presidential Library & Museum tour – Sunday, January 15, 2006

Come take your rightful place on board Air Force One!

Our first tour of the new year takes place Sunday, January 15, 2006 at the Reagan Library and Museum in Simi Valley. This is a joint tour with the Southern California region of Packards International. Our day begins with a delicious luncheon at Paul's Italian Villa located a short distance from the Library.

The Presidential Library was dedicated in 1991 and covers President Reagan's life from childhood in Dixon, Illinois, his years in Hollywood, two terms as Governor of California and two terms as President. There are nearly 50 million pages of documents and 1.5 million photographs in the collection. There will be a short quiz covering same at the end of the day. Displays include a replica of the Oval Office, President Reagan's Cadillac Limousine and the Johnson Marine One helicopter. Last but not least, the Air Force One Pavilion, home to the "the flying White House," is now open for tours. Come aboard the penultimate super plane of the last superpower nation! Ladies, come admire Nancy's decorative touches to the plane's interior!
